Laughing in the face of winter, students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School took to the outdoors Friday for a winter activity day. The students were divided in to teams and tested their skills in a number of games located throughout the playground. In one of the games, show above, the students attempted to flip a bean bag off the centre of a parachute.

Council urged to go slow on re-assessment

A delegation of lakefront property owners has asked Anson, Hindon and Minden Council not to rush its approval of a county-wide re-assessment.

A proposal is currently before the county government to have all property re-assessed with 1988 as the base year. If approved, the action would result in increases to most lakeshore property assessment, with its subsequent increase in municipal taxes for these property owners.

Pauline Plooard, representing the Horseshoe Lake Property Owners Association, told the council the members are concerned and unsure what impact the change will have on their taxes. She told the meeting the members had heard of tax bills doubling, when the re-assessment was carried out in Muskoka. Plooard suggested the council consider tabling any action until the consequences are clearer. She said she was also representing lakeshore property associations on Twelve Mile, Boshkung and Kashagawigamog Lakes.

Reeve Ray Moore responded by noting the council had been inundated with letters, "most of them photo copies," complaining about the proposed re-assessment. He said he felt the letters, "authored by Jerry Strickland," contained some erroneous statements.

However, rather than refute the details in the letter, Moore asked Plooard to

Blood, used syringes discovered

Drug use suspected in public washroom

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The discovery of blood and discarded syringes in a public washroom in Haliburton village is being blamed on intravenous drug users.

In a letter to The Times, Harcourt resident Pete Stickland reported his discovery of blood in a men's room in the Stedman's Mall.

Later Stickland spoke to mall owner Vince Connaughan who said the blood was the result of someone "shooting up."

When contacted by The Times Connaughan was hesitant to comment on the incident but admitted there has been a problem with people using drugs in the washroom.

"There have been instances of people going in and doing drugs, sniffing glue and drinking," said Connaughan. He said there have been occasions when discarded syringes were found when the washroom was being cleaned.

OPP Constable Ron Buchanan, who's assigned to cover Haliburton village, said he's unaware of intravenous drug use in the area.

About a month ago there was a problem with people sniffing glue in the washroom in the mall, and because sniffing glue often results in a bloody nose, Buchanan said that might be cause of the mess seen by Stickland.

Since the glue problem was identified, Buchanan said stores in the village have taken model glue off their shelves and now only sell it over the counter.

He said store owners in the mall were made aware of the problem and were asked to watch for groups of teenagers entering the washroom.

Buchanan said he'll investigate the reports of discarded syringes, "to make sure some diabetic hasn't left them behind, which would be a really stupid thing to do."

Connaughan said he didn't report the latest incident to the police and was attempting to deal with the problem internally. "It's no big deal," he said. "It's no different than other public washrooms."

But upon discovering the cause of the bloodied washroom, Stickland said he began to feel ill. "I'd blundered on something I'd only seen fictionalized on TV," he said in his letter.

"I thought I might be as close to contracting AIDS (Acquired Immunity Deficiency Syndrome) as I'd ever get. Just one slip on that bloody floor, one dab of that foul ichor on a cat-scratched hand, or near the mouth..."

In previous years there had been problems with drinking and vandalism at the public washrooms at the Rotary Beach, said Buchanan. This year the facilities were locked during the night and no incidents were reported.

The constable said the people involved in sniffing glue are teenagers who have either been expelled or come to the village from the high school during their lunch break.

Native issues

A forum held in Lindsay last week explored some of the issues involved in the native land claims of the Temagami wilderness. Among the panelists was Gary Potts chief of the band involved in the dispute.

Canada needs discipline and planning to achieve goals

This week's submission in the Canadian Forum is written by Leopolda Dobrzensky. Mrs. Dobrzensky is an immigrant from Czechoslovakia who has lived in Canada since 1951 when she fled the Communist oppression of her homeland. A resident of Haliburton, she is an active member of the community who has taken an intense interest in the history of the area. She has written a number of books based on her local research and assists area historical societies in interpretation of the county's story for summer visitors.

by Leopolda Dobrzensky

Does Canada have a future?

Of course it has the potential of becoming one of the great nations of the world, providing that we, its citizens, have the collective courage to admit that during the last 25 years our leaders have experimented with this country as if it were a test tube baby. Disregarding wisdom and common sense, they changed a stable, industrious, financially solvent society into one dependent on government handouts and foreign ladership.

Deep divisions among provinces, the breakdown of the family, erosion of authority and resulting rise in crime, endless red tape, rules and regulations, an army of policy advisers and a crippling national debt are the result of their ill-conceived policies. They forgot what their predecessors knew only too well, that true freedom is not the fruit of permissiveness but of self-discipline. Without discipline, whether in personal or public life, Canada will never achieve its potential. One could continue to philosophize, but I think that there has been enough rhetoric already. The time for action is now. There are certain changes which could be made immediately, before the country breaks up. They have to do mainly with the status of Quebec within the Canadian Confederation. Some long-term planning in regard to education, the legal system, immigration, etc., could be worked out over a long period of time.

The Constitution

I think that Switzerland, one of the oldest democracies in the world, could be a role model for us. Although much smaller in size, it has some of Canada's geological and language problems to which it has applied creative solutions.

Sixty-five per cent of Canada's land mass is solid rock, similarly 65 per cent of Switzerland's land mass are mountains, a fact of life which limits options for industrial and other developments. In Canada's case, the size of the country is an additional problem. To maintain economic stability, the Swiss are concentrating on tourism, the raising of livestock and the production of dairy products, high tech and cottage industry and the establishment of solid financial institutions. Despite a lack of natural resources, Switzerland has become one of the most prosperous countries in the world.

Politically, Switzerland is a parliamentary democracy, a federal state with decentralization of powers. The Swiss constitution guarantees citizens' right at all levels of political life. For national defence, it maintains a militia army.

The Swiss constitution give legal expression to the lessons drawn from Switzerland's history: The unity of the Helvetic State could only be realized by respecting the individuality of its member states. In Canadian terms this would mean that at the present time, Quebec would be recognized as a French province, the other provinces would remain English. In Quebec, the official language would be French only.

Politically, Switzerland is a federal state composed of 20 full and six so called half cantons. Although smaller, the cantons could be compared to Canadian provinces, with which they share a similar type of sovereignty and subordination to a central government in special matters. These matters are foreign affairs, defence, finance, justice and police, economy, transport and power; interior, which includes cultural matters, sports, environment policy, education, health and welfare and also construction. Because of the high level of administrative and political authority vested in the cantons, the roots of political life are essentially local. In Canada, the needs of Alberta, for example, are very different from those of Ontario, Quebec or the Yukon, therefore a more decentralized system would make sense, however, because of the size of Canada, its sparsely populated as well as densely populated areas and the economic disparity between them, this country could not be as decentralized as Switzerland to function well.

The Swiss believe that government should rest in the hands of the people. To this end, on reaching majority, all citizens have the right not only to elect their representatives to Parliament but also to take an active part in deciding legislative and constitutional questions. Two rights are of special interest: The right of Initiative and the right of Referendum. Written into the constitution, these rights influence the cantons also to a great or lesser extent.

The Right of Initiative at federal level, allows the citizenry to propose a complete or partial revision of the constitution. For such an initiative, 100,000 electors must sign a document setting out their proposals. The Federal Parliament is entitled to put forward a counterproposal. A popular vote is then taken on both proposals. A double majority (from the voters and the cantons) is needed for a change to the constitution to be adopted.

The Right of Referendum. All constitutional changes are put to an obligatory referendum. An optional referendum enables the public to have its say about federal legislation. A minimum of 50,000 electors, or eight Cantons have to request it. Between 1950 and 1988, exactly 200 referenda were put before the Swiss Federal Chancellery.

Historically, certain cantons have been settled by Germans (today 65 per cent of the total population), by the French (today 18 per cent of the population), by Italians (today 12 per cent of the population). The native Rhaetoromans comprise only one per cent of the population and their language is one of the four national languages. Great efforts are being made to preserve the Rhaetoroman language and culture. (In Canada, similar efforts should be made to preserve our Native languages and culture). Other ethnic groups make up the remaining percentage. German, French and Italian are official languages. The cantons retain original linguistic designations. For example: In the French Canton of Jura, there are large enclaves of German settlers. This fact has complicated the linguistic and cultural destiny of the area, but has not changed its historical designation as a French canton. In Canada, such examples give us something to think about because we are confronted with the problem of multiculturalism in several provinces.

Languages: In order to serve the total population, Swiss civil servants have to be trilingual. Others get by in their own language. In Canadian terms, this would mean that civil servants must be conversant in English and French, but that no one else would have to be bilingual, unless they so desired, or where numbers warrant. If preschoolers started to learn both official languages and continued throughout school, the knowledge of English and French would become automatic in Canada.

Perhaps it should be stressed that no matter where a Swiss citizen lives, whether in a German, French or Italian canton, he is a Swiss national first and and German, French or Italian second. Allegiance to Canada first and to one's linguistic group or ethnic background second, must become automatic for each and every citizen of this country. Unfortunately, this has not been stressed enough in the past, so that many Canadians pay lip service to nationalism and when their allegiance is put to the test, prefer to act as individuals, rather than putting the well-being of the whole country ahead of their own. In the case of politicians, their desire to be re-elected often prevails.

Multiculturalism:

I have very strong feelings in this regard. I came to Canada as a political refugee from communist Czechoslovakia in 1951, together with thousands of my compatriots who were given asylum and the chance to start a new life in this compassionate country. In return, we wanted to become good Canadians, not hyphenated citizens. At that time, ethnic communities built and looked after their own recreational centers and educational facilities, with no interference from the Government and no financial backing. We did not need, nor want multi-culturalism, which costs taxpayers millions and divides, rather than unites Canadians. How many masters is this country trying to serve? It is better to divert the money to affordable housing and job training, if one really wants to help newcomers. So let's eliminate multi-culturalism and the teaching of heritage languages in schools. Allow ethnic groups to arrange and finance their own programmes as before. Most immigrants are proud, hardworking people who do not want to be dependent on the system.

Immigration:

It would be good to remember that much of Canada is not habitable, economically depressed or sparsely populated. Therefore immigrants tend to settle in metropolitan areas, thereby putting tremendous strain on housing and services. Unless we find a way to build satellite communities or to distribute our rising population more evenly across the country, Canada will experience overpopulation problems in its urban areas. Considering the size of the country, this seems rather ridiculous. Perhaps immigrants should be required to spend a year or two outside of the cities upon arrival, or there could be incentives for those who move out and find employment in rural areas. No matter what solution is adopted, we cannot afford to have Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver grow to mammoth size through immigration, while the rest of the country is vacant.

Education:

Another impediment to Canada's future is our present educational system. More than anything else, it has been affected negatively by forces within and from without the system that challenged the concept of literacy as a primary goal of schooling, and who denied the importance of basic skills, especially in learning English. As a personnel manager for a small company, I witnessed some of the problems confronting recent high school graduates in the business world myself. For secretarial positions, I was asked to hire graduates with high marks in English, because our executives preferred to use dictaphones. Graduates with 85% marks in English were unable to handle the job because of poor spelling and usually left in frustration. Older adults, some of whom learned their 3R's in one-room schools, had no problem whatsoever. Perhaps if educators accepted the fact that in basic-skill subjects learning is sequential, they would have to insist that these skills are learned before a student could advance to more complex work. That would mean that some students would not advance and would have to repeat a year which, in my opinion, would be much less traumatic than to be rejected as an adult because of lack of basic skills. Do we really want to condemn many young Canadians to a lifetime of food banks or welfare, and the country to an every-increasing national debt and, perhaps as a result, to a third world standard of living? With present statistics showing that every fourth Canadian is functionally illiterate and that many of those are high-school graduates, the chances of making it in an increasingly competitive world are not good. What country can afford to pay millions for regular education and additional millions for literacy programmes aimed at graduates of the same system! Lack of discipline seems to be another problem. According to a recent CBC special on Sunday Morning, 60 per cent of students in Metropolitan Toronto carry knives or even guns to school for self-protection. Principals claim that their authority has been greatly reduced by the new Bill of Rights. Cigarettes, drugs and alcohol are used and abused by

Native chief speaks out in Lindsay

Temagami land-claim issue sparks natives' rights discussion

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Settlement of the Temagami land-claim issue could provide a model for solving native claims in other parts of Canada, according to a native chief.

Gary Potts, chief of the Teme-Augama Anishnabi people of the Temagami area, was one of the participants on a panel focusing on the native position on the Temagami wilderness held at Sir Sandford Fleming College last Thursday.

Joining Potts on the panel were John Olthuis, a lawyer who specializes in native rights, and Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville, one of the protesters who was arrested for taking part in the Temagami protest.

"It's unfortunate we live in a society where confrontation is required to get attention," said Potts. "It's important you know the story behind the faces and headlines."

Potts and his band are trying to get the courts to recognize their claim to a large portion of the Temagami wilderness. Their struggle was publicized when native and non-native protesters began blocking construction of a logging road proposed for the area.

Likening the situation facing the Teme-Augama Anishnabi with this summer's events involving the Mohawk people in Oka, Quebec, Potts said: "We're protecting our land, if it requires guns, then guns will be used. In Ontario we haven't reached that point and I hope it never will."

Native people feel a connection to the land that goes beyond the monetary value placed by most, said Potts. When they reach down into the earth, they know they are touching the campsites of their ancestors.

Potts emphasized the need to take wildlife into consideration when deciding land use. "Just because a moose can't come in here talking English and say what it's like to be a moose, we still need to hear that," he said. "Even the voice that does not have a human voice, still needs to be heard."

He outlined the history of the government's intrusion into the Temagami territory including the construction of highways and the railroad, and the imposition of trapping restrictions on the natives.

"There are many elements to the struggle," said Potts. "The history is quite remarkable. The spirit of the people has not been suppressed in 96 years of dealing with bureaucrats and being in courts."

The Teme-Augama Anishnabi lost the first round of their land claim battle when a provincial court judge ruled that the land belonged to the province.

The judge ruled that the chief of a native tribe living to the west had signed away native rights to Temagami on behalf of the Teme-Augama Anishnabi in the 1800s. Potts argues that the western band had no authority to sign away the rights to Temagami when the Teme-Augama weren't even present during the treaty negotiations.

The decision was appealed and the Ontario Court of Appeal upheld the original decision. The case is now before the Supreme Court of Canada, which has agreed to hear the natives' appeal.

Potts said there is still a great deal of ignorance on the part of Canadians when dealing with native issues. He's heard people say that Indians should "mind their place in Canadian society."

While admitting that Canada's is a great society, Potts said it's based on some fundamental problems.

"You believe you own our land, and you believe you can tell us what to do on our land," Potts told the audience.

"I'm still overwhelmed at times why general elements of Canadian society want to empty us of our identity before they recognize us as human beings."

Peaceful co-existence of native and non-native cultures can be achieved through dialogue and hard work, said Potts.

When asked about land-use policies if the band wins its claim, Potts said the natives would stop all strip mining and clear cutting timber and only use the land and its resources in ways that would not permanently harm the ecosystem.

"Mother Nature is the boss," he said. "You don't alter it so it can't take care of itself. The dignity of the environment is critical."

Natives are not extremists when it comes to land-use issues, said Potts. "We do not want a desert and we do not want a zoo. Loggers represent a desert and environmentalists represent a zoo."

Drainville addressed the forum relating his experiences of joining the protest and being involved in the subsequent trial.

"The trial was difficult," said Drainville. "I've never been accused of anything before a tribunal." At the time of his arrest, Drainville was an Anglican parish priest, and he said his decision to join the protest arose from his desire to put his beliefs into action.

"I'm no different than you are," he told the audience. "I'm no expert on the environment and I'm no expert on human rights. When we see our brothers and sisters living in totally oppressive situations and the destruction of the environment, we need to be able to act."

As a member of the new NDP government, Drainville said he hopes the election of his party will mark the beginning of a new chapter between native people and the government of Ontario.

If the Supreme Court rules against the natives' land claim, Drainville said he would consider continuing his role in the struggle by becoming politically active in the federal arena.

Olthuis, who represents all of the 228 people charged in connection with the Temagami protest, said the courts do not look seriously at aboriginal values.

"Despite a lot of talk of sensitivity to the First Peoples, it's not incorporated into the decision making process," said Olthuis.

As a way to deal with the native self-government issue, Olthuis suggested the Canadian constitution should spell out not only federal and provincial powers but native powers as well.

Health, social services to expand as committee allocates funding

The steering committee studying Haliburton County's long-term health, housing and social service needs is ready to start spending provincial money on local services.

Although the committee has yet to release its directional plan for the county, it plans to allocate funds to expand existing social and health care services.

Last August the Ontario government announced that $350,000 would be provided annually for the expansion and improvement of social service and health programs.

Committee chairman Maureen Dikun said rather than waiting for the completion of the directional plan, an ad hoc committee has been struck to recommend services that could benefit from the funding immediately.

None of the three members of the ad hoc committee are involved with any of the service agencies that could potentially benefit from the funding.

The ad hoc committee will draft a list of potential recipients based on priorities then submit recommendations to the full committee at the next meeting.

"Even though things are just starting, we're already using some finances that are there to serve some of the needs," said Dikun.

After more than a year of working on the study, the steering committee's work is almost done. For the past month, members have been considering final amendments to the recommendations that will be included in their action plan for the county.

Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville met with the steering committee at last Thursday's meeting in Minden and Dikun described the mood of the discussion as "positive."

"He seemed to know what the committee's work is about and was positive about the direction we're headed," she said. One of the concerns expressed by Drainville was the need to inform the public about the content and reasons behind the committee's recommendations.

MPP won't pay if fined for Temagami protest

MPP Dennis Drainville says if he is fined for his part in the Temagami protest, he will refuse to pay.

On Dec. 2, 1989, Drainville was one of 228 people arrested and charged with mischief for blocking construction of a logging road in support of native land claims in the area.

Last month, Drainville was tried and convicted of the charge. He will be sentenced on Feb. 13.

By refusing to pay any fine, Drainville says he will be continuing to show solidarity with the natives involved in the protest.

"Many of those arrested could not afford to pay a fine," he said. "It would be wrong for me to pay the fine and get off going to jail."

Another reason Drainville gives for not paying a fine is the fact that he doesn't believe he's done anything wrong.

"I was invited by the native people to come and stand beside them," he said.

Crown Attorney Andre Hunneault has asked that Drainville be given a jail sentence because the MPP has not shown any remorse for his actions. Defense lawyer John Olthuis has requested an absolute discharge.

Drainville says he thinks the Crown wants to make an example of him because of his position as a member of Ontario's legislature.

Not so safe

The distance from Haliburton County to Toronto has never been shorter.

The discovery of human blood and used syringes in a public washroom in Haliburton village is a stark reminder that rural Ontario is not so insulated from urban problems as we'd like to believe.

Drug use in Haliburton County is not a recent development and, as Ken Black's task force on drug abuse pointed out, narcotics are available in every city, town and village in Ontario.

There are indications, however, that the problem is escalating beyond the use of "soft drugs" such as marijuana or hashish.

Two years ago a local resident was arrested and convicted after bragging to under-cover police officers about the prosperous cocaine trade he operated from Haliburton's main street.

And now there are suspicions, as yet unproven, that there have been instances of intravenous drug use in public washrooms.

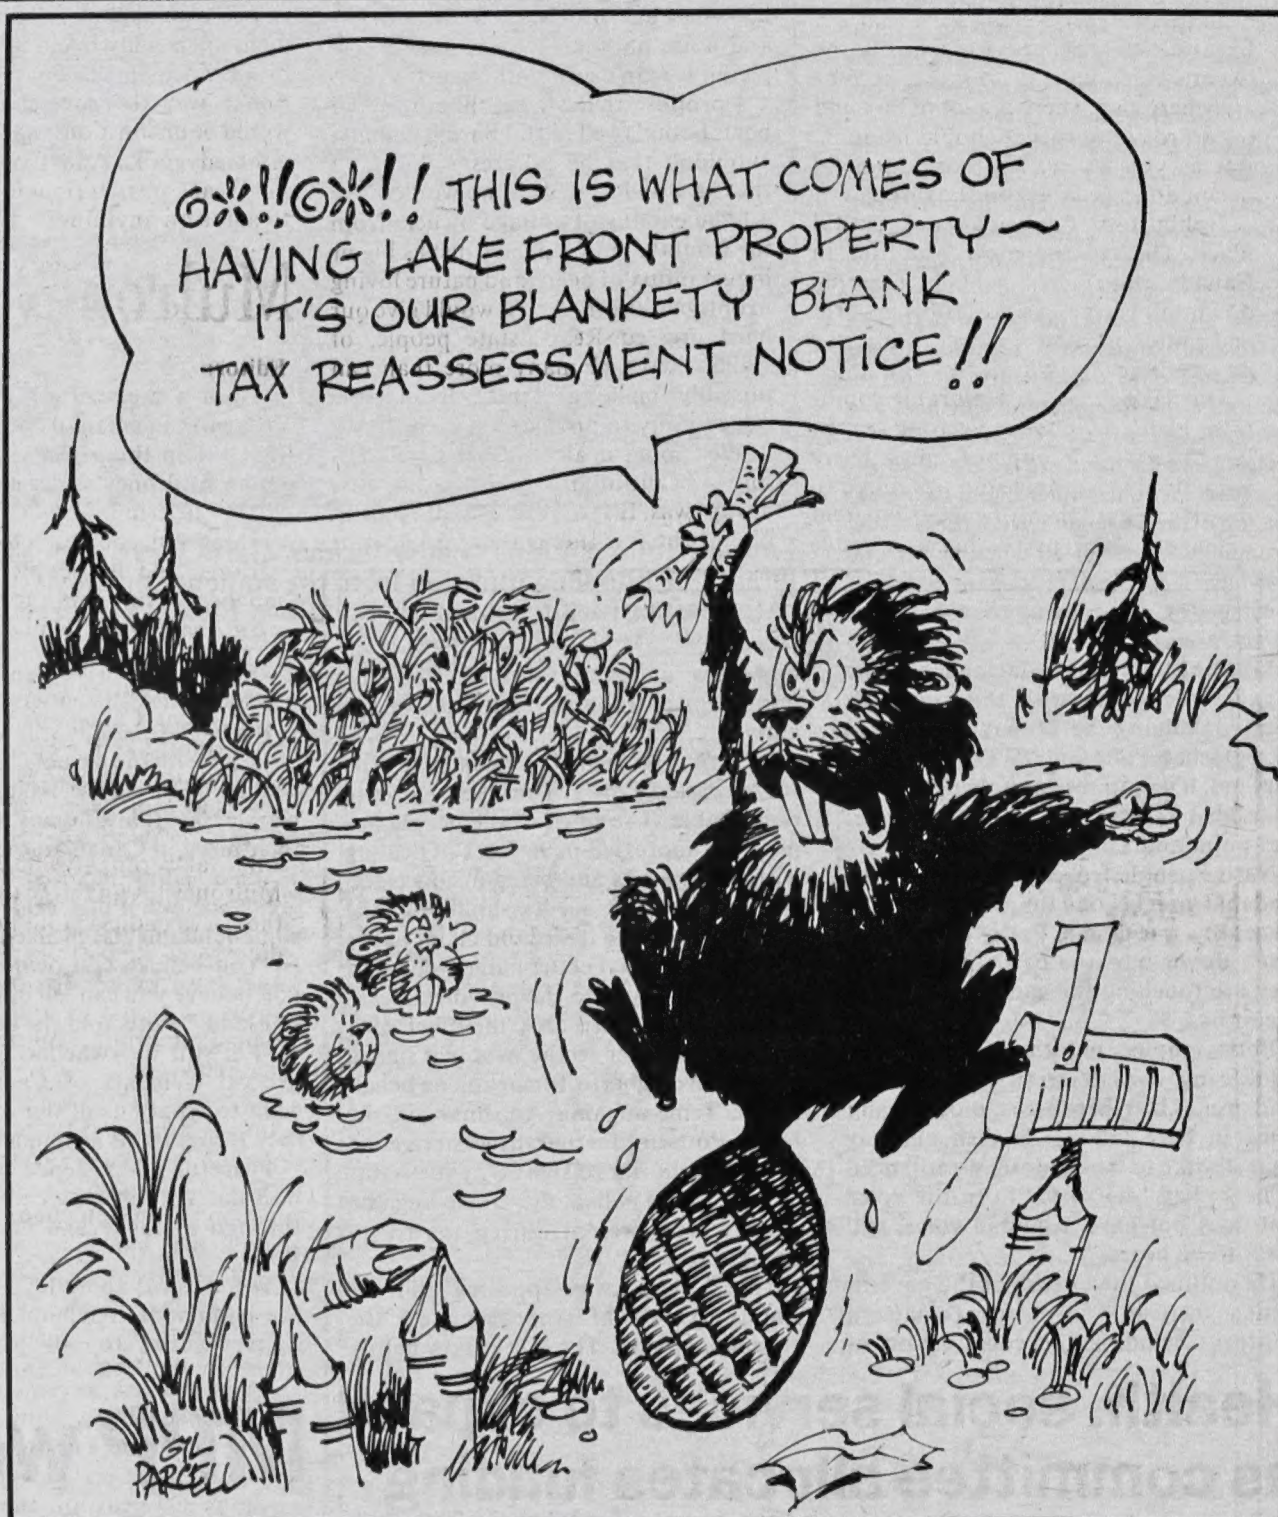

The image of blood-spattered floors and used needles is usually associated with the crack houses and shooting galleries in urban public housing complexes located in large cities like Toronto, and is out-of-step with the more tranquil lifestyle of Haliburton County.

Addressing the problem and finding solutions is no easier in here than it is in the city.

Tighter security might deny the drug users access to locations they currently favour, but, as in the past, they will eventually find a new hang-out and the problem will re-surface.

In his report Black said community-wide involvement is needed before any significant progress can be made.

It's time we started thinking along those lines.

KKK scrooges threaten to sue bearded Santas

I imagine when it comes to the next prayer book they won't write He, meaning Him with a capital "H". God will be written in lower case to banish any lurking sense of inferiority his worshipers might feel.

Alan Bennett, The Old Country.

You had a good Christmas, yes? Me too. So did pretty well everyone I know.

But then I don't have friends living in Monterey, California.

For Montereyans, Christmas 1990 was a little grittier than most, thanks to a lawsuit launched by the American Civil Liberties Union. Purpose of the lawsuit: to get Jesus off the lawn. The Monterey City Fathers had erected a nativity scene in front of City Hall. ACLU claimed the Christmas panorama

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

amounted to state endorsement of religion and as such, must be removed from public property.

The Union doesn't just sic its lawyers on Christians. It also goes after Jews who have the temerity to be religious in public. A large Menorah, the ceremonial Jewish candelabra, stands in a municipal park in Beverley Hills. ACLU is suing to have it removed immediately.

Idiocy is everywhere. Recently in Cincinnati a federal judge ruled that a Menorah could be erected beside a Christmas Tree in the Town Square. This in turn brought members of the Ku Klux Klan out from under their rocks. The Klownsmen demanded the right to burn a cross in the square. Nervous city fathers went into a huddle, then announced that the KKK could appear in the square providing they didn't wear their trademark hoods or ignite their cross. The KKK threatened to sue local Santas for wearing beards (!) and the whole sorry scenario degenerated into a fist-shaking rock-throwing brawl in the town square, just three days before Christmas.

Needless to say, all involved parties had God on their side.

Believe it or not, this nonsense percolated all the way up to the U.S. Supreme Court. A couple of years ago the American Civil Liberties Union launched a similar lawsuit over a nativity scene Christmas display in Rhode Island. The Supreme Court ruled that it was okay to show the baby Jesus in a cradle in

Boats pollute water and air of once-peaceful county

Editor:

There is nothing as beautiful and healing as clean, quiet unspoiled nature. I know. I experienced it as a boy in the twenties. We have it no more, here or anywhere else. There is a lot of talk and big words about what should be done, but as you know, big words and fat bacon don't get stuck in the throat.

Haliburton County is a very beautiful place. One of the most beautiful in Canada. But environmentally it's going down hill with all the rest of the world and I often wonder if it isn't too late to do anything about it.

Our lakes are in a deplorable condition. Fish and loons are getting scarce, just to mention a couple of things. There is no doubt that acid rain has much to do with it, but I firmly believe that great damage is done by the big monstrous motor boats. Boat motors were once small and fairly innocent but they have become huge 150-200 h.p., water, air, and noise polluters. And I have a suspicion we ain't seen nothing yet.

I propose that all gasoline powered boats be outlawed in Haliburton County. Wouldn't that be progress? Wouldn't that be wonderful? Yes, we would have a huge exodus of cottage owners from the County, but we'd have just as big or bigger influx of peace and nature loving people coming in. And it would give our hard pressed Real Estate people, of which there are many more than can possibly make a decent living, the opportunity to prosper for a while.

Well, boat dealers, don't panic. It's only a beautiful dream. I'm a dreamer, always was. It's wonderful to dream and one of the few things that, at least for now, is exempt from GST. And for that matter, we probably have no local politicians with enough gumption to implement such a law. And secondly, some bright hocus-pocus lawyer would soon find a way to prove that such a law would be unconstitutional or some other gobbledygook. And finally, Canadian politicians are notorious for being unable to agree on anything.

I could write a whole book on the subject. But as you know, the newspaper people always tell you to be short. So that's all you get. If you want more let me know. I'm overflowing with bright beautiful dreams, and you must admit, this is a real good one.

Mulroney should be impeached

Editor:

I am a member of a non-political group of Canadians from across Canada that are in the process of impeaching Brian Mulroney under section 220 and 221 of the criminal code. He has shown nothing but contempt for this nation's heritage and its people by making a mockery of our laws and our traditions, we are saying enough is enough he has to go.

There is not enough money for the things that Canadians consider to be important, like the environment, CBC etc., but there is always enough money for what Mulroney wants. He now has 64 RCMP body guards, Trudeau had 14, it takes roughly 300 people around Mulroney to run this nation, he has 591, the list is endless. Life for most Canadians is at the best of times a struggle, and if we were living in a democratic society it would be unthinkable that a Canadian Prime Minister would deliberately cause millions of Canadians to suffer through the loss of their jobs, homes, farms, and businesses by making a made in Canada's recession, if it was not for food banks every night nearly half a million Canadian children would go to bed hungry, this is a national disgrace. Are we to go back to the days of Charles Dickens, are there no work houses, are there no prisons, are there no food banks.

When we ask, why are you doing this to the people, his reply is always the same, "trust me, I know what is best for Canada", this man's contempt and his callous disregard for the well being of the common people must not be allowed to continue.

The time has come for impeachment, but we will need your help if we are to succeed with the task that is before us, we will need by June 8, 1991 at least one million signatures on our petitions, I am asking you today to support us (please don't make excuses why you can't) with your voice, purse, and pen by writing to me for petitions at Box 1473, Peterborough, Ontario, K9J 7H7. The time for cursing the darkness (Mulroney's dictatorship) is now over, it is time to light a candle for democracy.

Noel debate inspires poem

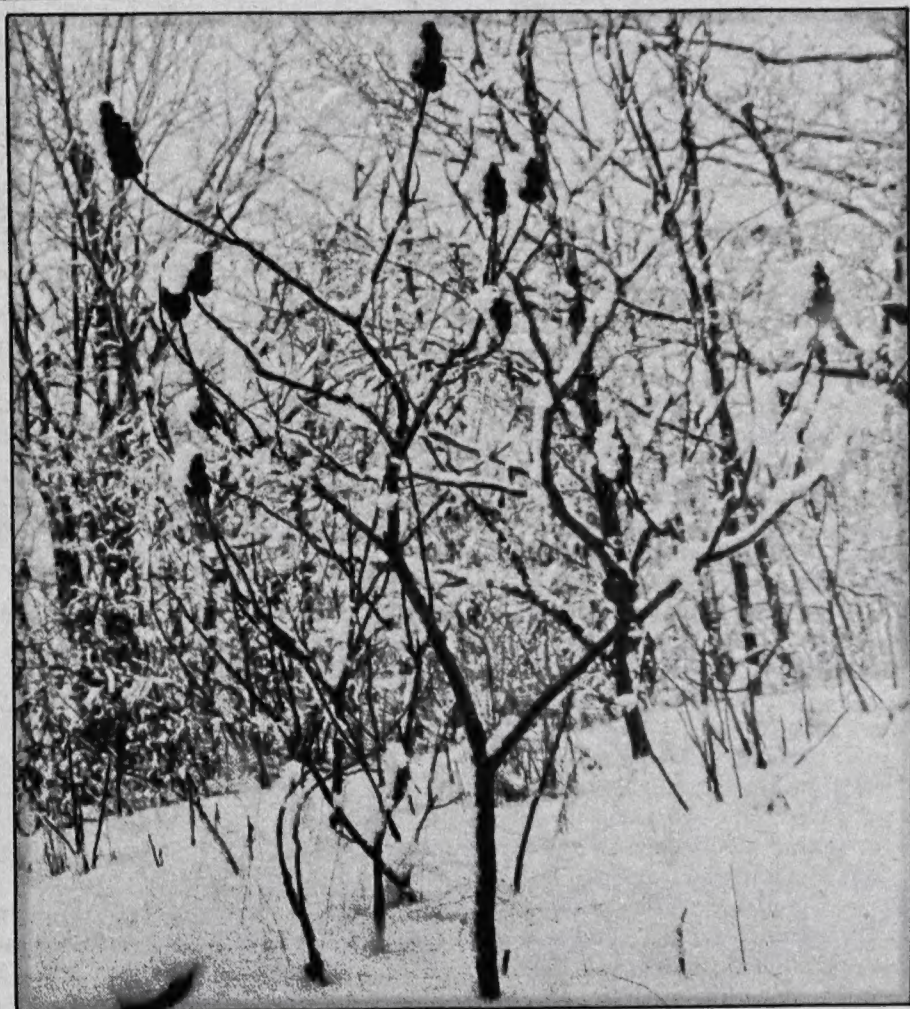

Editor:

I am following with a certain amount of bemusement the raging debate as to whether the word "Noel" is English or French.

Allow me to offer this limerick as my thoughts on the matter.

"A crabby old stickler named Pete claimed the use of 'NOEL' indiscreet. The opinions he aired were so full of merde I suggest they be something he eat."

public--as long as he was surrounded by one Santa Claus, two snowmen and three reindeer.

I'm surprised they didn't insist on an American Gold Card too.

Insane or not, the Plastic Reindeer Rule is now the informal yardstick which all American civic officials apply to any public displays on municipal property at Christmas time--which means that future generations of Americans will probably grow up believing that the birth in the manger was attended by Rudolph and Frosty the Snowman, not to mention Sneezy, Grumpy and Pinocchio.

The Supreme Court doesn't even call it Christmas anymore. It refers to it as "the winter holiday season".

It would be hilarious if it wasn't so pathetic. Christmas has already been thoroughly bastardized by the whirl of cash registers and the carney barking of retail hucksters urging us to buy more and ever more.

You'd think there'd be room in some tiny, corner for a simple, non-commercial un-consumerized manger scene or an unpretentious Menorah--such as Jews have been lighting at Chanukah for more than 2,000 years.

I haven't heard of any legal moves to adopt the Plastic Reindeer Rule on this side of the border, but no doubt it's coming. Canadians have always been eager suckers for sleazier, less palatable U.S. imports.

I think I'll start my Christmas shopping early this year. I'm looking for a figurine to grace next year's "winter holiday" display in the lobby of ACLU headquarters.

A plastic Mickey Mouse.

Crisis:

As war rages in the Middle East, Rolan Abraham is glad to live in Canada instead of his native Iran

by Susan Grober

Rolan Abraham points at a photograph of Canadian soldiers on the front page of a newspaper one of his customers is purchasing, and slowly shakes his head.

"They spend thousands of dollars for a tank. It's ridiculous. People are starving all over, and they spend so much on war."

The owner of Sunny Variety in Minden feels his attitudes on the Gulf Crisis aren't much different from his fellow Canadian citizens.

He hates politics. And he especially hates the tyranny which seems to run rampant in the Middle East.

But this war is fairly close to home for Abraham, who nearly experienced first-hand the ravages of a war with Iraq which killed thousands of people in his native Iran.

"Why should humans always find it so easy to make war, and so hard to make peace?" he asks. "It doesn't matter if I'm living here or there, I still feel the same."

Abraham was born and raised in Iran's capital, Teheran, as an Assyrian, or eastern Christian.

At the age of 26, he and his brother left Iran, four months after the revolution began when followers of the Ayatollah Khomeini overthrew the government on February 11, 1979.

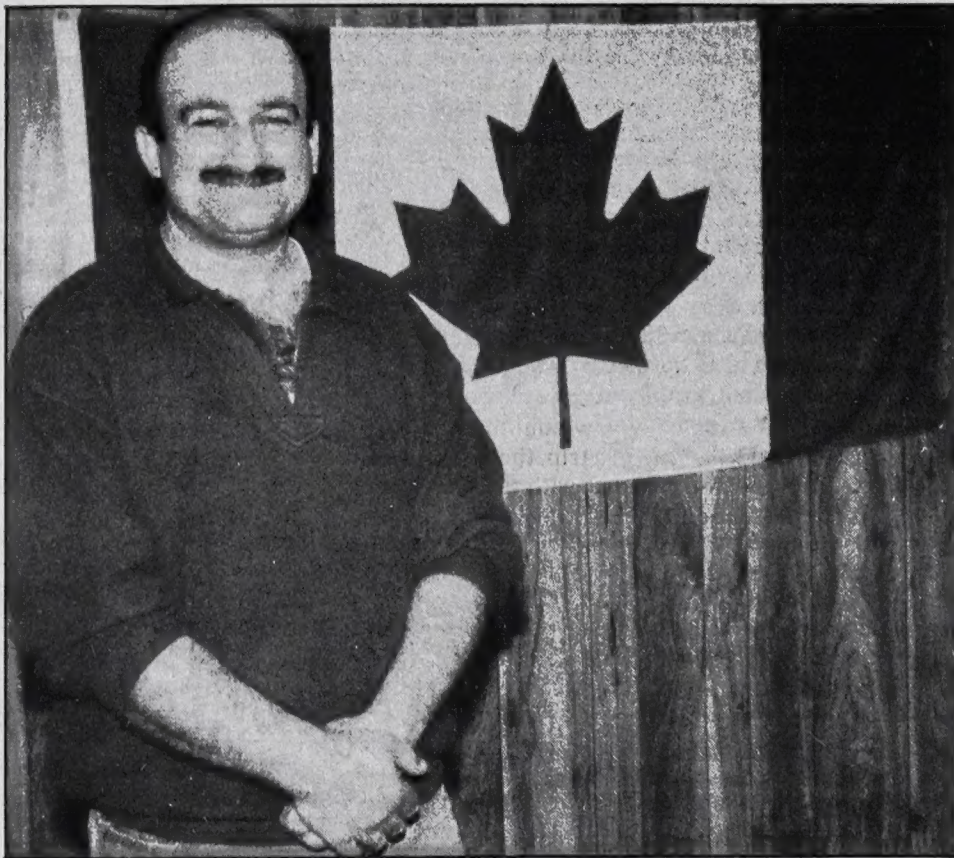

"Before the revolution, everything was good," says Abraham. "After the revolution, we have too much problem. And then the war started."

Abraham was lucky to leave the country before the war began. He'd already spent two years in the army. "But during peace-time, I'm glad."

And, once the war began, it was difficult to leave Iran. "After the war, people tried to escape, and sometimes they'd get caught."

His entire family applied to go to Canada before the revolution started. He and his brother first spent two months in Greece, and then went straight to Toronto.

"I had no problems leaving. I went out legally, and it was very easy to get out."

After 11 years in this country, Iranian-born Rolan Abraham is proud to call himself a Canadian. And, just like his fellow countrymen, the owner of Sunny Variety has his own views of the war in the Middle East.

His parents and younger sister, however, didn't find it so easy.

Because of problems with immigration, they had to stay behind until five years ago, when they moved to West Germany.

"It was easier for them to get there than here," says Abraham. "Immigration is very tough on who comes into a country, especially from an Asian country."

Abraham spent much time worrying while his family remained in Iran during the war. "I was feeling upset. I didn't want them to get hurt from bombs."

And the fighting went on for eight long years.

In September of 1980, a long-standing, sporadic dispute between Iraq and Iran broke into a full-scale battle over control of the Shatt al Arab waterway. The war raged on until a cease-fire went into effect in August, 1988.

"For me, nobody won this war," says Abraham. "Iraq said they won, but I don't think so."

Abraham also saw his native country go through many changes under the rule of Khomeini, who enforced the return of Islamic traditions.

Women's faces were covered with a veil, or chador, and they were forbidden to wear makeup. Alcohol was banned, and music was prohibited from radio or television.

"It used to be we had everything," says Abraham. "But now it's very hard."

Certainly, Abraham's own struggle in getting accustomed to a new country was preferable to staying in Iran.

Upon his arrival in Toronto, Abraham worked in a factory and at a grocery store, and eventually opened up his own store.

After four years in Toronto, Abraham and his new wife, Soo, moved to Bowmanville for five years. In November, 1989, the couple came to Minden, and have been running the variety store ever since.

These jobs were a far step from his previous occupation in Iran as a draftsman. After completing college for architecture and design, Abraham worked there for six years in an architect's office.

Although he has considered upgrading his education to perform this job in Canada, Abraham says there are just too many barriers.

"I wanted to try, but it was very hard (because of) the language," he says. "In a different country, there is different education. It's very hard to get a job."

Still, Abraham isn't complaining. "Another culture, another country, change jobs," he says with a shrug.

Abraham's appreciation of life in Canada is apparent. "I'm glad I came to Canada. Now it's my country."

He enjoys his work, and runs a popular karate club. And at night, he joins the rest of the world in watching the news to see what's happening in the Persian Gulf.

"I hate the politics there," he says with distaste. "Because when I was there, everybody talked politics. But they don't have any power to do anything."

"Talk, talk, talk, but it's very hard to understand. Especially the Gulf Crisis, because you don't know what's going on. We first thought they take over Kuwait for oil, but now the problem is relations between Arabs and Jews."

Abraham says he remembers Jews, Muslims and Christians living well together when he was in Iran.

"Now there are problems between Israel and the Palestine people. That one thing bothers me. Why is it always Jews, throughout history?" asks Abraham.

"Always they battered them and they hated them. Even in World War 2, they killed them for some reason. It's hard to understand why. We all came from Jews. Jesus Christ was a Jew."

That Iraq invaded Kuwait in August has been disturbing for Abraham.

"I'm really sad. Human versus human. Bombs. Innocent people dead. Somebody wants power, and takes the lives of others. It's sad."

*I hope it's not long,
this war, because we don't need it anymore.
I hope everybody make happy, and soldiers

Like many others, Abraham is in a quandary over this war. Although he's unhappy that American and Canadian forces have become involved, he also feels Iraqi President Saddam Hussein must be stopped.

"I don't like any country taking over another country. If somebody takes power, they should be stopped. If not now, maybe later he has more power."

Abraham prays the war will end soon. "Before more humans die, and make more wars. I hope (it's) not another Vietnam. I hope it's not long, this war, because we don't need it anymore. I hope everybody make happy, (and) soldiers home with family."

Yes, Abraham maintains his views on the war are like those of any average Canadian.

He gestures proudly toward the red-and-white maple leaf flag which hangs on a wall in his karate studio, and smiles.

"Because now, after 11 years I've lived here, my feelings are 100 per cent Canadian."

Parents make plea for students to see Phantom

by Susan Grober

There may still be a chance for Archie Stouffer Elementary School Grade 7 students to see the Phantom of the Opera.

Parents are up in arms because a field trip to see the musical within the next few months has been cancelled over a lack of participation amongst the three Grade 7 classes.

Board policy has set a guideline for 75 per cent as the required number of students attending a field trip. Participation for the Phantom was an overall 67 per cent.

In a letter to the board, Marian Harris asked for a review of the 75 per cent guideline. "I think it is too high! With most things in life, when we take a vote, 50 per cent plus one or two is enough, that is the majority. In this case, we let a minority make the decision."

Harris also expressed disappointment that the Sunship Earth trip was cancelled last year because participation didn't meet the 75 per cent guideline.

'It was really exciting!' student writes

"A project so worthwhile, about our environment... should not have been cancelled no matter what!" she wrote.

At Tuesday's board meeting, Ricky Woods and Brian Ladurantaye approached the board to protest the trip cancellation.

Woods said study outside the school has both educational and social value, as she's discovered after accompanying her children on four field trips.

"The children have to interact with students and teachers in a different atmosphere, and also with parents other than their own," she said.

Woods said if a majority is willing to attend and absorb the costs of a trip, then the final decision should be left with the principal of the school.

"I also feel 75 per cent is a large number," said Woods. "Sixty-seven per cent were in favour — why should they be penalized because eight per cent said they didn't want to go?"

Woods said she doesn't find the trip cost of $56.50 to be prohibitive.

"There's never been a child denied access to a trip in Minden because we have service clubs and fundraising."

Ladurantaye said he begrudgingly travelled to Toronto to see the musical with the Grade 6 classes of Archie Stouffer. "To me, I thought the Phantom was going to be a bore."

Although Ladurantaye said he was bored while sitting through a one-hour monologue about the Pantages Theatre, his feelings changed once the dramatic production began.

For students to miss the Phantom, "I think it would be a miscarriage of justice," said the police officer.

"It's a once in a lifetime opportunity," he added.

Ladurantaye also noted that the $56.50 cost with free transportation is a good deal for parents, especially since tickets to the show cost up to $85.

Chairman Cheryl Murdoch said the 75 per cent guideline was put in place because often too few students would attend some field trips.

She also objected to the suggested 50 per cent guideline. "My personal opinion is that's too low."

Trustees put a decision on hold, and will bring up the 75 per cent guideline at the next principals' meeting.

In the meantime, the board considered a December 20 letter from Grade 6 student Matthew Heffer, thanking trustees for his classes' opportunity to see the Phantom.

"It was really exciting!" Heffer wrote, describing his favourite scenes and special effects.

"One time there was a flash of fire and a puff of smoke and the Phantom disappeared! It was really neat. Thanks again for letting us go."

Reform Party looks to win riding in 1992

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

After only three months in existence, local Reform Party members are already talking about winning the riding of Victoria-Haliburton in the next federal election.

"If someone told me six months ago that a new party could win in this riding I would have said it was ridiculous — as ridiculous as the NDP winning provincially," said Barry Devolin, interim-president of the riding association.

Devolin made the comments at a public information meeting held in Minden last Wednesday. The gathering was one in a series the association has been hosting around the riding to try and increase the public's awareness of the Reform Party and its platforms.

Since its inception three years ago, the Reform Party has focussed its attention on the four provinces west of Ontario. In April, the party membership will vote on whether or not to expand the party's organization east of the Ontario/Manitoba border.

Devolin said the Reform message has caught on in Ontario and provincial membership has grown from 130 in April to the current level of more than 5,000, with hundreds of new members being signed up every month.

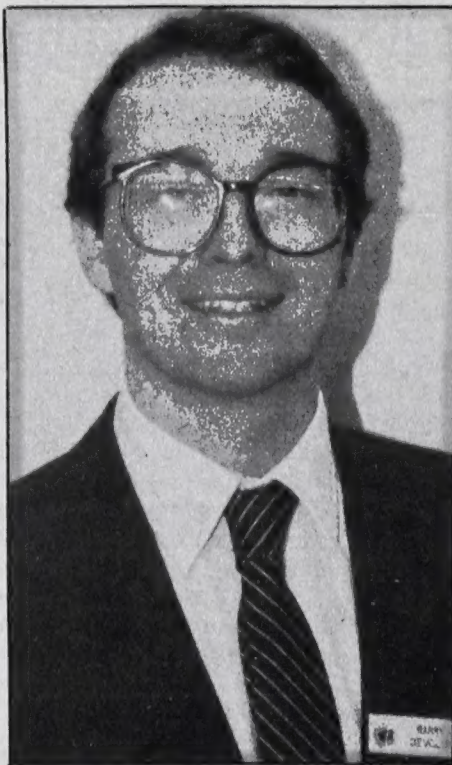

"What went on this summer with Oka, Meech Lake, the GST and the Senate fuelled the Reform fire in Ontario," said Devolin.

In Devolin's case the final event that motivated him to become active in the Reform Party was the NDP's victory in the September provincial elections. He believes the NDP's success was the result of Ontario residents voting against the Liberals and Conservatives. "People should have another choice," he said.

Devolin and a handful of other people formed a Victoria-Haliburton Reform Party Association in November and have spent the past three months bringing their message to people across the riding.

So far, the association has signed up 122 members and the executive hopes to increase that number to 200 by the end of February.

The Reform Party's agenda includes three broad issues that form the backbone of its platform.

Barry Devolin

Canada's fiscal situation and the ever-increasing national debt have to be addressed through cuts in government expenditure. Specifically targeted for reduction is the huge federal bureaucracy.

The party also wants to tackle the issue of the country's national identity and the relationships between the various ethnic and language groups.

The third plank in the Reform platform is parliamentary reform. As well as supporting the idea of an elected senate to represent regional interests, Reform members also want to see the system changed to allow members of parliament to vote according to their constituents' wishes and not along party lines.

Devolin said the party would also like to see voters have the power to recall their member of parliament mid-way through his term to face a by-election if they are unsatisfied with his performance.

The party's leader Preston Manning has predicted that the Reform Party could elect enough MPs next election to hold the balance of power in the government.

Although only half-a-dozen people turned out to the Minden meeting, Devolin said Wednesday's storm probably had an effect on attendance.

Similar meetings in the riding have consistently attracted between 30 and 50 people. Devolin says response to the Reform Party's platform in Victoria-Haliburton has been positive. "People are not satisfied with what they have now," he said. "A vast majority thinks the Reform Party is on to something."

Minden council hears concerns on market value re-assessment, but not prepared to vote

present the council with another way to assign taxes. "Show me a fairer way," Moore said, "the disparities in the tax system continue to spread."

The reeve said the council met with Ministry of Revenue officials Thursday afternoon in an effort to increase this understanding of the proposals. While the session added to the councillor's background, he said there were many unanswered questions.

Moore said that since the re-assessment was prepared, the members of council have found it to be a very stressful issue. "We are always on the defensive—it seems it is all people want to talk about." He said the council was concerned about all taxpayers in the township and wanted to do what was best for everyone.

Deputy Reeve Bern Berry said there was no doubt that while the total tax collected would not increase, the burden would shift to those on lakeshores. He said he was still looking into the impact and while there may be large increases for some taxpayers, it would be heaviest on vacant land or farm land recently changed to residential use. He said a larger number of municipal residents would experience a tax increase than decrease, even though the total tax collected would not change.

Berry said that while he had not decided how he would vote at the municipal level, his vote at the county level, where the decision will ultimately be made, will be tied to the outcome of the municipal decision.

Reeve Moore has indicated he will not allow his voters to be tied to the municipal decision. (Due to a weighted voting system at the county level, the Anson, Hindon and Minden reeve will have two votes while the deputy-reeve has one.)

Plooard told the meeting that not only are the members of the organization uncertain what the re-assessment will mean to their taxes, they are upset that the potential increases would occur this year with the economy in a slump and the GST adding to individual financial woes. She said the lakeshore property owners generally get very little for their taxes. Increasing how much they pay will not mean an increase in the value of services they will receive, she added.

Councillor Bob Sisson said it was unfair for the councillors to be asked to vote on re-assessment without knowing what the impact would be on property owners within the municipality.

Councillor Mike Maher repeated these sentiments, describing the proposal as "buying a pig in a poke".

He said it had been difficult to get comparisons on individual properties because of regulations under the freedom of information act. "No one at this table has had an easy time of it," he told the delegation. He said the ratepayers should not view the problem as an "us-them" situation. "We still need more answers before we can make a decision."

Councillor Lewis Stevens said he agreed that no decision should be made until more facts are known.

While the council seemed reluctant to put the matter off for a year, it was clear the group was not prepared to come to vote on the matter that evening. The next council meeting is February 14, six days before the county council session when the matter is expected to be presented for discussion.

Haliburton pizza restaurant may expand, add arcade

by Susan Grober

Perino's Authentic Pizza in Haliburton Village may be expanding at a new location.

Owner Herschel Jacobs approached Dysart council last Monday with his proposal to move the business into the Real Value Mart building, and add a small arcade to help pay the rent.

"The location is just a little too big for what we really need," said Jacobs, explaining why he would need to open the arcade.

Jacobs proposes to bring in six stand-up video games, two coin-slot pool tables, four pinball machines, and one futsal table. He also plans to put in an automatic coin dispenser.

A windowed partition would separate the arcade from the restaurant, allowing Jacobs to supervise both areas while he is in the kitchen.

Jacobs said either he or his wife are always at the restaurant. And if it goes over well, he might employ someone to supervise the arcade.

"It will be open enough so that whatever goes on,

I'll be able to notice," he said.

However, Jacobs has some problems with the municipality's by-law on arcades.

First of all, the bylaw prohibits those under 16 from an arcade without permission from a parent or guardian.

"I find that a little bit unreasonable," Jacobs said. He said his 13-year-old customers show responsible behaviour. "They come into my pizza store all the time and play the sit-down games."

Reeve Bill Davis said council allowed another arcade in the village to print up membership cards which parents would sign for those under age. "It's up to you to make sure the parents did sign that."

"But that just concerns the locals," said Jacobs. Many of his clients include tourists and kids here for hockey tournaments.

Jacobs also said many kids frequent his pizza restaurant because they have no place else to go.

Another objection expressed by Jacobs was that the bylaw prohibits students from the arcade between 11:30 to 3 p.m.

"We put a provision in there to keep the kids in school and out of the arcade," said Davis.

Corrections

In a story last week about the proposed subdivision at Hart Lodge, it was incorrectly reported that the Granite Group is involved with the management of Windemere Cottages on Kennissis Lake. Also, the headline over a story regarding the County official plan said townships favour a one-tier system. As stated in the story, support is over-whelmingly in favour of a two-tier system.

The Times regrets any confusion caused by these errors.

Pucks fly as Pee Wees win 3-1 over Bobcaygeon

by Lisa Bagshaw

On Saturday, January 19, Minden OMHA Pee Wees held their annual tournament at the Minden Arena.

There were four teams in total, including Haliburton, Fenelon Falls, Bowmanville and Minden.

Minden was scheduled to play Haliburton for the first game of the day at 10 a.m.

Minden managed to hold them off for most of the first period, but Haliburton managed to score with only 1:24 left in the first period, and again with only 39 seconds left.

Haliburton scored seven more goals during the course of the game, making the final score 9-0.

Most Valuable Player for Minden was Goalie, Justin Rowden.

Minden was then to play Fenelon Falls at 1 p.m. The play went from one end of the ice to the other with both goalies receiving several shots on net, but there were no goals to be scored in the first period.

In the second period, Fenelon was able to slip two goals past Minden.

Twenty-nine seconds into the third, Minden's Dennis Woods managed to shove one past Fenelon's goalie on an assist from Curtis Fielding and Jeff Wray.

However, Fenelon was to come back and score three more goals, to finish the game 5-1 for Fenelon Falls.

M.V.P. for Minden was Dennis Woods.

Next, Minden was to face-off with Bowmanville. Minden's Scott Bacon managed to pick up the puck on a breakaway at the five minute mark of the first period and slam a shorthanded unassisted goal into Bowmanville's net. Less than three minutes later, Bowmanville slipped one by, making the score 1-1 going into the second period.

Bowmanville was the first to score in the second period, but only eleven seconds later Minden's Dennis Woods picked up a pass from Jeff Wray and pounded one in, once again shorthanded.

In the third period Bowmanville scored once more, to make the final score 3-3.

It was then decided that a five-minute sudden-death period would be played. Much pressure was put on both teams, but no goals were scored.

After this five-minute period, there was to be a three-man shoot-out with Rob Reid, Jeff Wray and Andrew McKelvey being the three players for Minden. However, Bowmanville won the shoot-out, making the final score 4-1.

Much pressure is put on the goalie in a shoot-out situation, and Minden's goalie, Justin Rowden is to be commended for his excellent play.

Most Valuable Player for Minden was Scott Bacon.

The overall winner of the tournament was Haliburton, who won all three of their games.

On the following day, Minden travelled to Ops. Upon arrival, we were to find out that our goalie, Justin Rowden was unable to make it to the game. So, another player had to be selected to play goal. Our obvious choice was Scott Dedman who had played in net with a previous team.

Ops scored the first goal at 5:38 in the first period, but Minden soon answered with a goal from Dave Raback on an assist from Daniel Howell. However, Ops was to score two more goals in the first period making it 3-1 going into the second.

Again it was Ops who opened the scoring with two quick goals, but Minden's Curtis Fielding was able to slip one by a few minutes later.

Ops scored again at the seven minute mark, but Minden refused to give up and Curtis Fielding made an excellent pass to Rob Reid who slammed it in from the blue line making the score 6-3 going into the third period.

Minden was finally able to open the scoring in the third when Scott Bacon slipped one in on a pass from Chris Eskelin and Dave Raback. However, Ops soon answered with another goal three minutes later.

Minden was not ready to give up and scored yet again when Daniel Howell made an excellent pass to Tommy Bagshaw who pounded it in from the blue line. Forty-seven seconds later, Minden's Curtis Fielding got his second goal of the game on a pass from Daniel Howell and Dennis Woods.

Ops was able to score two more goals in the third, and Andrew McKelvey made Minden's final goal (also from the blue line) unassisted.

The final score was 9-7 for Ops.

Scott Dedman played an excellent game in net and is to be congratulated.

Minden has a had a busy schedule lately and on Thursday, January 24 they travelled to Bobcaygeon for a playoff game.

There were no goals to be scored in the first period, but at the half-way mark of the second period, Minden's

David Raback was able to slip one in unassisted.

Forty-eight seconds into the third period, Curtis Fielding made his mark on a pass from Jeff Wray, but at 5:45 Bobcaygeon managed to score their one and only goal of the game.

With only 1:38 left on the clock, Rob Reid lifted the puck into the air on the back of his stick over the players' heads, hit the cross-bar of the net, and the puck fell in behind the goalie to make the final score 3-1 for Minden.

Meet To Skate action comes soon to Minden

by Nancy Garbutt

The Minden Skating Club is hosting the 4th Annual "Meet To Skate" Competition at the Minden Arena February 2 & 3. The action begins at 9 a.m. Saturday and continues until 5 p.m. Sunday with a few hours in between to rest. We have skaters numbering 170 arriving from as many as 40 clubs. They will range in age from 7-17, and will compete in events from singles, isolated elements, mixed pairs and dance for a total of 255 events entered. This makes for a busy day for the organizers (Nancy Garbutt and Linda Schrader), their willing committee members and all of the volunteers. All officials for the meet (accountants, judges and referees) are volunteers.

Many local merchants and service clubs have sponsored us or have given us donations. We are very appreciative. The response has been overwhelming. Without their generosity, this competition would not be the financial success that we are anticipating. This is the main fundraiser of our club for the season. All proceeds from this meet benefit our young skaters, one way or another.

Please come out and catch some of the action over the weekend. Admission is $1 for adults and 12 and under are free. We hope to see you there!

Canadians must quash antagonism students throughout Canada. School attendance is irregular and the number of drop-outs high. (33 per cent as per Statistics Canada).

Isn't it time to bring back some old-fashioned discipline and external evaluation of student work, such as departmental tests? These tests have served Canadians well before. Businesses should be discouraged from hiring drop-outs, who would not be eligible for government assistance, income tax credits etc.

In a competitive market, quality is paramount. To develop better-quality workmanship, countries such as Sweden or Germany introduced mandatory, specialized schools for tradespeople. We could follow their example. To provide training in quick and effective decision making without recourse to endless feasibility studies, a school for administrative leadership in government and industry could be established in Ottawa, modelled on the French ENA (Ecole National d'Administration). Considering the millions now spent on studies, Royal commissions etc., it would soon pay for itself.

To teach self-discipline to young people, the European system of a one-year compulsory military service or its equivalent in the form of a "Peace Corps" type community service programme, would be helpful in cutting down addiction and crime, but more specifically, to counteract the lack of purpose and goals in the life of so many of our young adults. The latter service would be very compatible with Canada's claims of being a caring society.

The Legal System:

With crime steadily increasing, the well-meaning Canadian justice system which does not concern itself with the plight of the victim is out of date and should be improved by legislation. While rehabilitation of the criminal will continue, the first duty of a legal system should be to protect the innocent, not the culpable. As far as youth is concerned; while being sensitive to young people, one should not allow murderers (in some cases mass murderers), to get away with a three-year jail term just because they are underaged. Police statistics show that since the Young Offenders' Act has been introduced, crime among those under 16 years of age has greatly increased. Changes to the legal system should include changes to the Young Offenders' Act as well, and a provision that no criminal case can be cancelled because the courts are behind in their work.

Finances:

Starting as of now, fiscal restraint must be practiced by the Canadian government to reduce the debt, which hangs like an albatross around our necks. A law should be passed that proceeds from the GST must be used for no other purpose but to reduce the deficit. Special benefits and perks, such as the high pensions which members of Parliament are now receiving, after only a few years in office, should be ruled out of order. Individuals too should practice restraint, especially in borrowing. Generally speaking, personal credit for non-essentials should not be as easy to get. Training in life skills, budgeting and care of the environment should be compulsory for students and available to adults free of charge.

Media:

If we really love this country and wish it well, antagonistic attitudes which seem to have overtaken the nation ought to be replaced by positive co-operation. In this respect, I can't help but feel that a more balanced overview by the media, especially the electronic one, of Canadian and world affairs, as advocated by Patrick Watson of the CBC in a recent newspaper article, would go a long way toward greater harmony and understanding among Canadians. We need more wisdom and greater tolerance to better understand ourselves, our country, our neighbours and the world at large. The knowledge that goodness and beauty are still very much alive, will lift our spirits and give us the courage to work for the future of a united and happy Canada.

Novices win 6-0 at Cannington tourney

On January 19 the Novice "A" team travelled to Cannington for a tournament.

The first game was against Oakwood and Josh Shaw started the scoring in the first period assisted by Dan Nielson and Paul Daniels. It wasn't until the middle of the second period that Dan Nielsen gave us our second goal assisted by Josh Shaw and then Dan and Josh repeated it again with a goal and assist in the middle of the third period.

The scoring wasn't quite finished yet when Paul Daniels scored the fourth goal assisted by Michael Hamilton. Michael went on to score the last two goals unassisted, with the final score being 6-0 for Minden.

The second game of the tournament was against Beaverton, despite a good try by all, especially defence-men Richard Brohm, Trevor Cole, Jason Scott, Trevor Woods and Jordan Barclay, and goalie Shane Walker. Nice try Shane!

There was also some excellent digging in the corners by Colin McKenzie and Greg Kerr.

Congratulations to Jason Scott who was selected as the M.V.P.

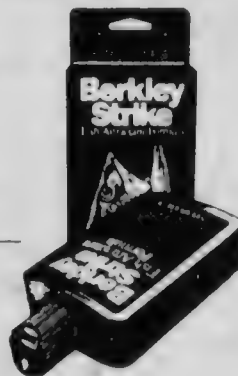

Parents and players would have to vote Barry and Andy as "Best-dressed" coaches of at the tournament.

Conservation group identifies historic Minden properties

Six properties in Anson, Hindon and Minden have been identified as historic. The municipality's Local Architectural Conservation

Advisory Committee (LACAC) filed its 1990 report naming the six properties which committee members felt deserved the special designation.

The six include:
- the Bethel Church, the county's oldest log church.
- the Clergy House, the county's oldest building/
- the Dominion Hotel, the county's oldest commercial building.
- the Fair Grounds, Minden, the oldest fair in the county, having operated for 127 years.

- Saint Paul's Anglican Church, the oldest church in the county.

- Twelve Mile Lake Church, an early church of the area that basically has been restored and contains all the original furnishings and fixtures, including oil lamps.

According to the report, all the properties have been researched and the titles of ownership verified. The owners will be notified that the council intends to apply the historical designation and what that will mean. Once the designation is applied, owners will be limited in the type of renovations they can carry out on the property. The owners will be made aware of the provisions which apply under the historic designation and be given an opportunity to file an objection.

The LALAC committee includes, chairman, Verne Graham, and volunteer members Gordon Angus, Ada Campbell, Royce Miller, Patrick Murphy and Dwight Thomas.

School board welcomes new Cardiff trustee

by Susan Grober

It shouldn't take long for the latest trustee with the Haliburton County Board of Education to get into the swing of things.

Last Tuesday, the board welcomed Lloyd Griffiths as its new Cardiff-Bicroft trustee.

Griffiths is a former teacher/principal. "We were well satisfied with his qualifications," said trustee Len Salvatori, who interviewed Griffiths along with board director Stuart Baker.

When Griffiths was a principal, he served on a principal's association for North York and monitored board meetings on behalf of this group.

"So the procedures that boards use at this table are not unfamiliar to Lloyd," said Baker.

Griffiths agreed to fulfill the role of trustee for the rest of 1991, replacing Linda Mumford who resigned last year.

And he seems to be up for the job — already within the first few minutes of the meeting, Griffiths readily bounced back after receiving a little flak from a fellow trustee.

"I have concerns," said Tim Casey, "that he's not as good looking as the former trustee."

"I agree with him," Griffiths retorted.

Pitching in

Students from Archie Stouffer Elementary School took their concern for the environment to the Minden office of Ontario Hydro on Friday. They helped load a truck from Muskoka Containerized Services with several bags of fine paper for recycling. Hydro employee Louise Craig said the office has started an internal recycling program and because the nearest depot for refined paper is in Bracebridge, arrangements were made to have MCS make the pick-up. The school was invited to add any recycled paper it wished to have recycled and the students provided the muscle to load the container.

Funds sought for Bobcaygeon Road

The Bobcaygeon Road may get the attention residents have been seeking.

It was announced at last week's Minden council meeting that a request for supplementary funding for road work would be made to the provincial government.

The grant, which covers 75 per cent of the cost of any approved project, was initiated by the province as part of its recessionary relief program.

The municipality has applied for $150,000 in the normal supplementary funding program and an additional $120,000 under the anti-recession program for a total of $370,000.

All but $20,000 of this amount would be spent on the Bobcaygeon Road with upgrading and hard top resurfacing to be completed from Prentice Street to Queen's Line, except for a small section to town where the road is in good condition.

According to the report to council, the 25 per cent municipal share of the project will not affect the township road budget for 1991.

Canadians have their say through Forum

Established in November 1990 by the Prime Minister, the Citizens' Forum will encourage Canadians to speak out on the important issues facing the country and will foster dialogue between citizens of different regions and backgrounds. To this end, the Forum intends to use various ways and means.

Citizens can participate by: telephone 1-800-66-FORUM, seven days a week between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. in all time zones; sending letters to P.O. Box 1991, Station 'B', Ottawa, Canada, K1A 1A2; submitting briefs of up to 20 double-spaced pages, preferably typewritten, by February 21, 1991; filling in the reporting forms, both group and individual, enclosed in the group discussions, with or without a Commissioner in attendance. Some of these discussions will be on television and radio.

To help group discussions to be held across the country, the Citizens' forum has prepared a list of 14 points which will form the basis for discussions. These are initial questions to start the six-month consultation process under the official mandate of the Forum. The list may change as new themes are brought up during the discussions.

Report from Ottawa

With Bill Scott, MP

Discussion Points

1. What are the major issues facing this province or territory in the 1990s?
2. What are the major issues facing Canada as a whole in the 1990s?
3. In an increasingly competitive global environment, what does Canada have to do to succeed in the 21st century?
4. What do you think about Canada having two official languages?
5. a) What do you think the effect of an independent Quebec would be on you?
b) What do you think the effect of an independent Quebec would be on this province or territory?
c) What do you think the effect of an independent Quebec would be on Canada?
6. a) What are your views on the relationship between Canada's aboriginal and non-aboriginal peoples?
b) What are your views on settling aboriginal land claims?
c) What do you think the effect of aboriginal self-government would be on:
i. Aboriginal communities?
ii. Canada?

7. What are your views about Canada's cultural and ethnic diversity?

8. Canada has a number of different regions, with different characteristics.

a) What are some of the things that are unique about the region we're in?

b) Thinking about these things that are unique to our region, what do they add to Canada as a whole?

c) Some regions of Canada are economically worse off than others. What should be done about these economic differences?

9. We have a number of rights as Canadians. We have some of these rights as individuals; we have others because we may belong to certain religious, aboriginal, or ethnic groups. How can we best balance our rights as individuals with our rights as members of groups?

10. We've already talked about a number of things that should be done to address some of the problems you see. In addition to these things, what else should be done to make Canada a better, fairer and more prosperous country for all its people?

11. In Canada, the federal government is responsible for some aspects of governing the country, and provincial and territorial governments are responsible for others. Regardless of how these responsibilities

Had a call from Yvonne Guida recently and she tells us she spent an evening

reliving wonderful memories while listening to an old friend, Mario Lanza singing his heart out on a tape of Caruso favourites.
Mario and his wife Betty were frequent guests at the Guida home and Betty often helped Yvonne put her children to bed. Unfortunately, Mario Lanza died in Italy at age 38, the same age as Enrico Caruso when he passed on.

Yvonne's former husband was also a tenor and that was why they were friends.

Such wonderful memories

Chamber travel guide reaches world markets

After a long hiatus the Chamber Column is back. I enjoyed writing it before—even the tyranny of the deadline which always tends to do an excellent job to focus one's mind. The Board felt that it was important that the community and the Chamber Members be aware of the issues and directions that the Board will be dealing with over the coming year. The Chamber, as a County Organization, always has been a focal point where the needs and aspirations of the Business Community,

From the Chamber

by Shawn Hagerman

Resort Community, Municipalities and individuals have converged. When such different visions and needs meet, this sometimes brings harmony, sometimes views conflict, but the overall goal should always be growth and better understanding of each other's importance to building a better community.

One of the most important challenges this year was the Board decision to assume direct responsibility for the publication of a Four Season Travel Guide. Chamber Members would be given the opportunity to participate in the publication of a travel magazine featuring such famous Canadian writers as Pierre Berton writing and sharing their experiences of our county. In addition to being distributed throughout Ontario, a significant portion is being allocated to the U.S., British, and German tourism markets. This year over 15% of those signing the visitor book at the Chamber Office were from outside Canada. There may be still an opportunity to advertise. If interested, please, call immediately the Chamber Office for additional information concerning approaching publishing deadlines.

Another Chamber goal is to help provide increased membership services.

Speakers and events have been planned for January, February and March. Thursday, January 30 at 7:30 p.m. at Bonnieview Lodge, Peter Overington will present a seminar with regard to Ontario Bill 208 under the Occupational Health and Safety Act. This new act, which came into effect January 1, 1991 is of utmost importance to employers especially with those who employ six or more people. Bill 208 grants new rights and responsibilities to all employees working for firms with six or more employees. Interested members should contact the Chamber Office since space may be limited.

Please put us in our place!

Kids' Korner

by Jean Lacey

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally.

They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Time to get tickets for Sweetheart dance

For Your Service

Georgina Deeks for Branch 636, Minden

Time to get your pencil out and mark the calendar.

Upcoming events

Sweetheart dance - February 9, 8:30 p.m. - 1 a.m. Refreshments. Tickets: $6 each.

Tickets on sale at Legion. Pick them up early so you don't miss out.

Monthly Trivia - February 20 at 7:30 p.m.

A fun night is planned for Saturday, February 23 at 8 p.m.

Tickets for a draw on sale now for a hooked rug and two pairs of ceramic loons. Tickets: $2

Let's give these events our support. A lot of work goes into getting these together.

It is with deep regret we lost one of our executive members. Frank Dunsford passed away this month. Frank was always ready to give a helping hand. He was very proud of his Legion. We will miss him. Our sympathy goes out to his wife Annie and family.

Also this month the passing of Bill Donnelly and Jack Stacey's wife, Freda. Our sympathy to Fern and Jack and their families. We will not forget them.

Ruth Samarillo has been home ill and I hear Tony is an excellent cook and housekeeper.

Chris Dollo is in Minden Hospital.

Both are improving now, let's keep it up ladies.

Any change of address since joining Legion, please phone Jean Clark at 457-3579. Thank you.

Not a ticket was left to the New Year's dance. What a success. It was so nice to see so many comrades out to bring in the new year together.

The following people donated prizes: Deloreth Hisson, a pair of ceramic loons; Jean Farrell, a hand loomed shawl; Leitha's Sweet & Treats, an evening bag.

The lucky winners were: Corrine Arsenaault, Valerie McAdam and Dave McAdam.

Spot dance luck winners were: Sally Bonner, Fred Adamson, Corrine & Hector Arsenaault, Pearl Durant and Phil Graham.

Everyone took a break at midnight to enjoy a delicious lunch.

Many thanks to all who helped make the evening a success.

Fall Tour in the works

The executive of the Haliburton County Fall Studio Tour have already started organizing for the 1991 Fall Tour.

As many cottagers, guests and lodges plan for this weekend well in advance, Ellen James, Chairman of the 1991 event, would like to inform everyone that as in previous years, the tour will again be held the weekend before Thanksgiving weekend. The tour dates this year will be October 5 and 6.

If anyone would like more information, please contact James at 286-2572.

Q: What did one flea say to the other when they came out of the movie?

A: Shall we walk home or take the greyhound?

Q: Why did the dog jump into the River?

A: He wanted to catch the catfish.

Q: Why does a dog wag its tail?

A: Because no one will wag it for him.

Q: What do you get if you cross a cat with a canary?

A: A happy cat.

Q: What kind of cats like to go bowling?

A: Alley cats.

Who is God?

Is God real? Do I have any responsibility towards God? Does God care about me?

"O the depth of the riches of the wisdom and knowledge of God" Romans 11:33

BAHA'I FAITH

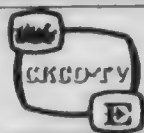

"Whatever suffering and turmoil the years immediately ahead may hold, however dark the immediate circumstances, the Baha'i community believes that humanity can confront this supreme trial with confidence in its ultimate outcome. Far from signaling the end of civilization, the convulsive changes towards which humanity is being ever more rapidly impelled will serve to release the "potentialities inherent in the station of man" and reveal "the full measure of his destiny on earth, the innate excellence of his reality."

The Promise of World Peace: A Baha'i Statement on Peace by the Universal House of Justice is available through your local Baha'i community.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Bill Donnelly says a very deep thank you to all the caring friends who shared in the sadness of his recent death. Your comforting words, cards, calls, donations of food,

dation were much appreciated.
The concern of the Senior Curling Clubs and the compassion of the members of Our Lady of Fatima Parish have been a sustaining force to all of us. Thank you.

Fern Donnelly

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Sarah (Jenny) Newson wish to express our gratitude to: Extencicare, the Palliative Care team, Randy Warburton, Gordon, Cameron & Kirsten Monk, also all our friends & relatives for the cards, flowers, memorial donations and food. A very special thank you to the ladies of the Haven of Rest Chapel for the delicious luncheon they provided. Everyone's concern and help were truly appreciated.

IN MEMORIAM

WARD, OLIVE LILLIAN - In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away January 27, 1989.

We had a Mom with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold;
Without farewell she fell asleep
With only memories for us to keep.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear Mother,
That we do not think of you.

Always remembered by your family.

LUKE, JOHN EDWARD - In loving memory of a dear husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather, John Edward, who passed away January 31, 1982.

Your gentle face & patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
Then passed away, beloved by all.
When the days are sad & lonely
And everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear you whisper
Cheer us and carry on.
You are not forgotten loved one,
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory lasts,
We will remember thee.

Lovingly remembered by wife Edith and family, Rob, Jack & Joan & Donna-Marie.

IN MEMORIAM

FAIRHALL, BEATRICE - In loving memory of a dear grandmother who passed away January 26, 1990.

Remembering you grandmother,
With a very special prayer,
That God above in His great love
Will keep you in His care.

Sadly missed, always loved and remembered by Tanya.

WATSON, AMBROSE - In loving memory of a dear husband, father, grandfather, great-grandfather and uncle who passed away January 27, 1989.

We think of you in silence
We often speak your name
All we have are memories,
A picture in a frame.
Our hearts still ache in sadness,
And silent tears still flow,
For what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
Our family chain is broken now,
And nothing seems the same,
But as God calls us one by one,
The chain will link again.

Always remembered by wife Clara & family.

AT REST
